1 AFTERNOON SESSION

1:05 P.M.

3 (The following proceedings were held in open
4 court, outside the presence of the jury:)

5 THE COURT: Okay, so I have this memo, and I have
6 some questions -- well, let me let Mr. Hogan speak first, I
7 guess.

8 MR. HOGAN: Thank you, Your Honor.

9 This has been going on for so long, Your Honor.
10 There have been things filed, if I could just make my factual
11 foundation for this.

12 In September -- or, in July, Mr. Capozzola wrote to 13 me and said he had gotten the Guidance image materials and was 14 going to turn it over to the expert. I wrote back that day
15 and said, you do at your peril if you're going to claim
16 privilege. He did it anyway.

17 They gave it to their expert, who in varying degrees
18 has said he looked at it and said that these weren't 19 privileged or at least made some determination of the 20 privilege. And now he's saying he's looking through the files
21 somehow and can determine whether or not they may contain
22 something that might be privileged.

23 The bottom line is, it wasn't inadvertent. I showed 24 them the inadvertent cases. I made it clear that giving it to 25 a named trial witness would be claimed a waiver.

1 They did it.

2 All right, they held on to it through July. I
3 finally get it in September. And when I got it, the same --
4 they took some things out, but if they didn't take 'em all
5 out, they knowingly gave it to me. They had it for two months
6 that they could have been reviewing it and gave it to me.

7 I did not agree that giving it to me was not a
8 waiver, and I don't agree that that turnover was not a waiver.

9 The document that I'm trying to deal with, which is
10 103 -- the rest of these are not in play in this case, and I'm 11 not intending to introduce them, Your Honor.

12 103 has a lawyer from White & Case on it. This was 13 during a period of time in which Fleming and White & Case were 14 adversaries by law.

15 Now, it's quite a surprise to me today to find out
16 that the lenders even knew who Mr. Berry was, really, and that 17 they cared that -- who he was. But I always understood that 18 this joint defense is -- you're actually being sued by

19 somebody, or threatened with a suit, and you get together --
20 and I've done 'em before -- you do 'em underwriting, and 21 everybody agrees how it's going to be handled, and you enter
22 into a joint defense. That's number one.

23 THE COURT: I am assuming they had no such explicit
24 agreement; correct?

25 MR. BAUMANN: I don't know the answer to that,

1 Your Honor. I just don't know the answer to that.

2 But I do believe it's an incorrect statement of law
3 that you're required to have a written agreement.

4 THE COURT: Not my question.

5 I am assuming if you had such an agreement, you
6 would have it with you today. Because the issue is here now,
7 and if you had it, I'm assuming you would be putting it in
8 front of me and saying, look, we had an agreement that, you
9 know, we had a common interest to fend off creditors who 10 would --

11 MR. BAUMANN: Sure.

12 THE COURT: -- eat up whatever funds -- what few 13 funds we had here for the bankruptcy court to take care of,
14 and here's the agreement, and so we had a common interest in 15 this.

16 I'm assuming that since you were prepared enough to 17 give me a memo claiming that all these people had common
18 interests, that if you had such a document, you would be 19 giving it to me now.

20 I think that's a pretty fair assumption.

21 MR. BAUMANN: I think it is, but what I can tell you
22 is, the timing of when this brief was created and prepared --
23 that may not be an accurate assumption. I don't think people
24 made an effort to go see if there was one.

25 But I think for the purposes of the motion, it's

1 absolutely fair for you to assume that there is no written
2 joint defense agreement.

3 THE COURT: And Mr. Capozzola is not here because he
4 doesn't want to answer questions about it?

5 MR. BAUMANN: No, he's not here because he's 6 actually getting the next set of witnesses ready to testify.
7 But if -- I mean, we can ask him -- Your Honor, I think -- as
8 I said, I don't know what else to say.

9 I can't represent to the court that there isn't a
10 written agreement, because I don't know -- I don't know if 11 Mr. Capozzola knows. I think for purposes of the argument, as 12 you said, I think it's fair for you to assume that there
13 isn't. It's not in front of you. I think that's fair.

14 THE COURT: Okay.

15 MR. HOGAN: So we're at a period of time,
16 Your Honor, where this was not kept with -- that's one level
17 of waiver. I think I've talked about two.

18 I'll go to the third level:

19 This document was given to a lower member of the 20 group under Upjohn -- I'm not sure, Your Honor. I know the 21 court does this a lot more than I do, and I didn't have much
22 time trying to eat lunch and trying to review this.

23 But you can't give out your privileged
24 communications to everybody at work. And, clearly, they did 25 that.

1 So I think on three levels, Your Honor, there's been
2 a waiver. One, I don't think it was ever privileged. If it
3 were privileged, it was waived.

4 And that's my position, Your Honor.

5 THE COURT: Okay.

6 MR. BAUMANN: Your Honor, I think with respect to 7 it, if you follow through the sequence, I do believe it's 8 clearly privileged.

9 And the issue and the argument is, does it -- its 10 appearance in Guidance images that were provided to 11 Mr. Walker, does that constitute a waiver of the privilege?

12 THE COURT: Okay, I'm actually not persuaded that
13 the privilege was waived in that manner.

14 MR. BAUMANN: Okay.

15 THE COURT: But I am more concerned about the 16 inclusion of the White & Case attorney, and -- you know, I can 17 easily understand how counsel representing a client in 18 bankruptcy may develop a cooperative relationship with -- is 19 this a creditor's committee council? Is that who it is?

20 MR. HOGAN: This is the bond holder, the top dog,
21 secured creditor, the enemy of any debtor.

22 THE COURT: I see. This is not the creditor's
23 committee attorney --

24 MR. HOGAN: This is the foreclosing creditor that 25 arguably would have precipitated the bankruptcy.

1 THE COURT: Okay.

2 But, in any event, I can understand how, if you're
3 representing somebody who has gone into bankruptcy, you may
4 want to keep people who look like they are your adversaries
5 because they are creditors informed and on board, and appear
6 to be cooperating with them. And you may have a common
7 interest in not letting outsiders come in and create even more
8 of a financial mess.

9 But the nature of this e-mail doesn't strike me as 10 one in which Mr. Capozzola was saying, look, a common enemy;
11 we are working together to fend him off.

12 Because, instead, this e-mail seems to say, I think
13 this is Mr. Berry's theory. I'll spin it out, as I've thought
14 about it, and we're likely to be sued on this theory.

15 As opposed to, let's put our heads together to come
16 up with a mutually agreeable way to fend this off.

17 It doesn't seem to be in that nature.

18 So, you know, I'm kind of inclined to say that, you
19 know, while it may be all well and good to have this 20 cooperative feeling with some creditor's attorney, that this
21 isn't a common defense kind of analysis -- this e-mail.

22 MR. BAUMANN: Well, think of it as it actually plays
23 out in the e-mail, Your Honor.

24 The first sequence in the e-mail is a description of 25 a potential threat: Can a claim be made by Mr. Berry?

1 Now, who is the claim going to go against? It's
2 going to go against the estate in bankruptcy.

3 Who has an interest in the assets in the estate in 4 bankruptcy? The debtor, the creditors. And they are adverse
5 to the claim that Mr. Berry is asserting.

6 That seems, to me, to be transparently true in this,
7 so that they are saying, what is it that this threat that
8 exists to the estate, what can it do? And what is this 9 theory?

10 And, in that, there clearly was, and is, a shared 11 interest among all those parties, because he was adverse to 12 all of them in the bankruptcy.

13 THE COURT: But just because you have some kind of a
14 common interest for some purposes doesn't mean that everything
15 that you communicate with that person is privileged.

16 I mean, you know, by that analysis, Mr. Capozzola
17 could have written a letter solely to this White & Case
18 attorney and claimed that it was privileged, and that wouldn't 19 necessarily be the case.

20 That's why I'm looking at the content of this, and 21 kind of skeptical that even if they had common interests in 22 not wanting somebody else to get their hands on limited
23 monies, that this falls under some kind of privilege.

24 MR. BAUMANN: Let's take your hypothetical,
25 Your Honor.

1 Let's say Mr. Capozzola had written to the White &
2 Case lawyer and said, the estate and all of us are going to be
3 sued by Mr. Berry. What do you want to do about it? Here's 4 our plan. And we will jointly pursue this defense against 5 him.

6 If it said that, it would solely be between the 7 lawyers that you just identified -- and you would be reading
8 it, and my guess is that you would say, clearly, that is 9 evidence of a communication in pursuit of a common defense and 10 should be privileged --

11 THE COURT: Not necessarily. I might think, what is 12 Mr. Capozzola doing, communicating what should be privileged 13 information to somebody else?

14 I might well think that, frankly.

15 MR. BAUMANN: You might, Your Honor, and that's 16 why --

17 THE COURT: As opposed to saying, here it is,
18 privileged.

19 MR. BAUMANN: Okay, but that's why, Your Honor --
20 that's why it's -- privilege is extended to a common defense,
21 a common interest. That's the language of the law.

22 And I would point out that the owner of the 23 privilege is not the attorneys, it's not Mr. Capozzola. And 24 if you want to argue a waiver as a result of a mistaken belief
25 or mistaken conclusion that it's okay to jointly defend

1 against claims by Mr. Berry among these entities, and
2 therefore, you're going to impute that waiver to the client
3 and waive the client's privilege, I think that's a very
4 serious thing.

5 And we're doing it, you know, for no purpose,
6 frankly. Liability has been determined. The --

7 THE COURT: I know, but obviously, Mr. Hogan wants
8 to introduce this to rebut the argument by the defense that 9 Mr. Berry's program wasn't of much value. You know, that they 10 could get along just fine without it.

11 I don't think this is all that critical a piece of 12 information for Mr. Hogan, but at the same time, I don't think
13 it's all that -- so confidential that Fleming has to get all
14 hot and bothered about it.

15 MR. BAUMANN: Well --

16 THE COURT: And I think things -- that relationships
17 between parties are not always 100 percent the same.

18 And, for some communications, it may well be that,
19 you know, it's pretty clear that there was some common
20 interest that justifies the privilege, and for some there may 21 not be. And this one, it seems to me, is sort of more on the 22 side of not being privileged, and more sort of here, FYI, I'm
23 in the habit of kind of keeping, you know, everybody informed
24 about what's going on, so, well, here, I'll just include you
25 on the e-mail.

1 And I don't know that this is sort of a common
2 defense kind of e-mail, at all. It doesn't really strike me
3 that way.

4 MR. BAUMANN: I understand what your conclusion is.
5 I mean, privilege -- as to the substance, I don't think it's
6 particularly significant, but that's not the test.

7 The test is whether or not the client who is the 8 owner of the privilege can be said to have made a knowing and 9 voluntary relinquishment of that right through attorneys.

10 And the law is very clear that even if he was 11 mistaken in sending it to someone else, even if he should not 12 have sent it to someone else, the law would protect the 13 privilege in the hands of the client.

14 THE COURT: No, no, no, no --

15 MR. HOGAN: Can I be heard on that issue,
16 Your Honor?

17 MR. BAUMANN: May I just finish?

18 Because, Your Honor, that's troubling to me, because
19 we actually have an ethical rule in the State of California,
20 and I understand you have a similar one in Hawaii, that if I
21 inadvertently send something to someone, I can request it
22 back, and it's the ethical obligation of the lawyer to give 23 it.

24 THE COURT: That's not what my no, no, no, no went 25 to in the least.

1 MR. BAUMANN: Okay.

2 THE COURT: I agree with you that if there were a
3 mistake and something erroneously was faxed to Mr. Hogan, when 4 you intended to send it to Mr. Hosoda, that, yes, the 5 privilege would be preserved.

6 But my no, no, no, no comment was to the effect that
7 that has nothing to do with this particular situation.

8 I have no indication at all that Mr. Capozzola
9 erroneously sent this e-mail out --

10 MR. BAUMANN: I'm not suggesting --

11 THE COURT: -- to White & Case, all the while 12 thinking he was sending it to the Kobayashi law firm, or 13 something like that. I have no reason to think that.

14 MR. BAUMANN: And I'm not suggesting that,
15 Your Honor.

16 But what I am saying is that, if he operated under 17 the mistaken belief that he was free to communicate with his 18 fellow adversaries to Mr. Berry -- and you now conclude that 19 he was mistaken in that -- the privilege that you are waiving,
20 the privilege that you are taking away, belongs to the client.

21 And that's why I'm -- you know, I'm --

22 THE COURT: That's where I think that you're
23 stretching the idea of inadvertent waiver way beyond
24 recognition.

25 I mean, attorneys do these things sometimes, and

1 they darned well have consequences for the client.

2 If Mr. Capozzola had sat in a meeting with
3 Mr. Hogan and said to Mr. Hogan, you know, I shouldn't tell
4 you this, but, you know, my client, like, actually knew and
5 just still went ahead against my advice and did these horrible
6 things... just because it was the attorney who said it, I
7 hardly think that Fleming could rise up and say, we told that
8 to our attorney in privilege, and Mr. Hogan can't use it.
9 They may well have a claim against Mr. Capozzola, but they
10 can't then bar Mr. Hogan from using it on the ground that it
11 was a privilege communication, and they had not waived the 12 privilege.

13 MR. BAUMANN: Fair enough.

14 And if, Your Honor, that's your inclination to rule,
15 I would just say that it is a serious issue with respect to 16 attorney-client privilege. And we've objected, and we've 17 stated for the record what our objections are --

18 THE COURT: Okay.

19 MR. BAUMANN: -- and appreciate your effort.

20 MR. HOSODA: Are we done with that issue,
21 Your Honor? I have another one to raise.

22 THE COURT: Okay, so I am going to overrule the 23 objection, and Exhibit 103 can be used.

24 MR. HOSODA: Your Honor, very important for my 25 clients' is time, as you have just looked at the clock.

1 Yesterday you announced that the plaintiffs have been charged
2 with 249 --

3 THE COURT: Well, right now, Mr. Hogan has used 298
4 minutes. He has one hour and two minutes left.

5 The plaintiffs have used 171 minutes, and they have
6 two hours and 51 minutes left. Did I do that right?

7 MR. BAUMANN: No, you reversed it.

8 THE COURT: Okay.

9 Mr. Hogan has used 298. He has an hour and two
10 minutes left.

11 Defense, combined, I think, have used -- wait... 189
12 minutes, I'm sorry. You have used 189 minutes. You have 171
13 minutes left -- two hours and 51 minutes left for the defense.

14 MR. HOSODA: And then how does that work if, for 15 example, the plaintiff runs out of minutes?

16 THE COURT: Then he can't stand up anymore.

17 MR. HOSODA: And the court is going to just let him
18 know -- or, how is that going to be addressed in front of the 19 jury?

20 THE COURT: Well, I am assuming he is keeping his 21 own little tally sheet.

22 You have an hour and two minutes left, Mr. Hogan.
23 If you run out of time, then you have to sit down until the 24 evidence closes.

25 And the defense has two hours and 51 minutes left.

1 THE COURT: Yes.

2 THE COURT: So you want Mr. Christensen back on the
3 stand, just to ask him about Exhibit 103?

4 MR. HOGAN: Just to ask him about it.

5 THE COURT: Okay.

6 Can you send him back on up, and we'll go get the
7 jury.

8 (Mr. Christensen resumed the witness stand.)

9 THE COURT: I will say, you know this Exhibit 103?
10 I don't think it's anything like my hypothetical thing where 11 Mr. Capozzola spilled his guts to Mr. Hogan, because here
12 we've got Fleming people right in on the very e-mail, aware 13 that Mr. Capozzola was communicating to White & Case. And,
14 presumably, if it bothered them, they would have said
15 something.

16 THE CLERK: All rise.

17 (Jury escorted into the courtroom at 1:29 p.m.)

18 (The following proceedings were held in 19 open court, in the presence of the jury:)

20 THE CLERK: Please be seated.

21 RECROSS-EXAMINATION

22 BY MR. HOGAN:

23 Q. Mr. Christensen, you have before you a document that has
24 been marked and admitted as Exhibit 103.

25 Do you have that, sir?

1 A. Yes, I do.

2 Q. I'm going to try the Elmo, courtesy of defense counsel,
3 and see how it works. My computer's... this document, marked
4 103, purports to be an e-mail dated --

5 THE COURT: You can't move it around that much. We
6 all get sea sick. I've done -- I know what you're doing.
7 I've used the Elmo myself, when I was counsel, and I realize
8 it's tempting to just play with it, but you make everybody
9 sick.

10 MR. HOGAN: I didn't realize it was going to do
11 that, Your Honor.

12 BY MR. HOGAN:

13 Q. Mr. Christensen, this is an e-mail dated May 9th, 2003.
14 It's from, I believe, you to one of the people in your Fleming
15 Hawaii; is that correct, sir?

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. And what are you doing in this e-mail? I'm going to --
18 what I don't understand, sir, you have it sent to what looks
19 like Teresa Noa here; is that right, sir?

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. But it says: FYI, Mark, did we do the attached or 22 reinstall the original?

23 A. Yeah, I don't understand that, either.

24 Q. Okay?

25 THE COURT: (Laughing.)

1 MR. HOGAN: I'm sorry, I thought you said something
2 to me, Your Honor. I don't know if I'm hearing voices or 3 not... could be.

4 BY MR. HOGAN:

5 Q. Now, was that e-mail a forward of the second page of this
6 exhibit, sir? Were you forwarding an e-mail?

7 A. It looks like it.

8 Q. And, this e-mail, sir, is from, I believe, Mr. Capozzola,
9 and it's to several people.

10 Do you know who C. Birchette is? Would that be 11 Craig Birchette?

12 A. Yes.

13 Q. And what is Mr. Birchette's job, if you know?

14 A. I think he worked in the legal department of Fleming.

15 Q. In Fleming's corporate offices?

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. For their main headquarters? Would that be your 18 understanding, sir?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. Now, in this e-mail, there's discussions of Mr. Berry's
21 software among various people.

22 And you, apparently, were copied on this, sir? Is 23 says right here, B. C-H-R-I-S-T.

24 Is that you, sir?

25 A. Correct.

1 Q. ~~And this was May. We're looking back in time. It's~~

2 April. The system doesn't really do that much. It's helpful,
3 but -- we think we're licensed, but people are still talking
4 about it.

5 At that point, sir, if this system was totally of no
6 value, wouldn't you have just shut it off then, sir, on May 7 9th with this discussion going on among all these people?

8 A. (No response.)

9 Q. I'll give you an example, sir:

10 If there is a light in your house that's flickering
11 and driving you nuts, and you don't even need to go down into 12 the basement or anything, you would just turn it off; correct?

13 A. Correct.

14 Q. But why didn't you just turn off Mr. Berry's software on 15 that day, with all this noise... flickering?

16 A. I don't think that's a good analogy between a light bulb
17 and the data that we have to deal with.

18 Q. You needed to use it; is that a fair statement? At that
19 day, on that moment, you just couldn't go down to the basement
20 and turn out the light?

21 A. Well, like I said earlier, we had a right to use it. And 22 that's what we were doing. Until I'm told that, yes, turn it
23 off, then I feel that we're doing the right thing.

24 Nobody told me to turn it off; that you're doing the 25 wrong thing.

1 Q. But -- I understand that, sir, and I'm not making any
2 claim that they did. Okay? I want to make sure that's clear.

3 But all I'm saying is, if it was totally worthless
4 and didn't have any value -- which is, I think, what we have 5 been hearing -- wouldn't you just go down to the basement and 6 turn off the flickering light?

7 A. No, because the data that resides in there -- I need the 8 data.

9 Q. Right.

10 A. I still need the data. So until I have to abandon it,
11 then the data's still useful for me.

12 Q. For you?

13 A. Sure it is.

14 Q. As the head of the division?

15 A. For our operation.

16 Q. Thank you, sir.

17 A. Okay.

18 MR. HOGAN: Nothing further, Your Honor.

19 MR. BAUMANN: No questions, Your Honor.

20 MR. HOSODA: No further questions, Your Honor.

21 THE COURT: Okay, then the witness can step down.

22 (Mr. Christensen was excused at 1:34 p.m.)

23 THE COURT: And who is your next witness?

24 MR. HOSODA: Teresa Noa, Your Honor.

25 (Ms. Noa approached the witness stand.)
